	The Spencer Foundation invites proposals for its new civics small grant programme. This aims to support research that asks critical questions about how education can more effectively contribute to the civic development of young people. The foundation has a particular interest in studies that attend to the following: powerful motivations and psychological influences; enabling learning experiences and environments; societal or group norms, political processes or events, historical and cultural trends and other contextual influences. Grants are directed to institutions, research groups etc. Award amount max $50,000 http://www.spencer.org/the-new-civics-guidelines Tentative deadlines for the following year are February 1, 2016, May 1, 2016, August 1, 2016, and November 1, 2016.
	ESRC Research Grants open call. There is considerable flexibility when it comes to subject area, too. As long as you always make sure that your suggested topic falls within ESRC's remit, you are free to concentrate on any research area. You can submit applications to the scheme at any time - there are no fixed closing dates. Awards rang from £350,000 to £1 million (100 per cent full Economic Cost (fEC) and this can be made to eligible institutions to enable individuals or research teams to undertake anything from a standard research project through to a large-scale survey and other infrastructure or methodological development.
