EXPLANATORY STATEMENT

Introduction

In November 2011, the Commission presented its proposal for a Regulation on a new multiannual programme for education and training, youth and sport that will run for seven years, 2014 to 2020.

The proposed programme merges all current programmes and actions in the field of education: higher education (Erasmus, Erasmus Mundus, Tempus and bilateral programmes between the EU and third countries), school education (Comenius), vocational education and training (Leonardo da Vinci), adult education (Grundtvig) and youth (Youth in Action). It also includes provisions for Jean Monnet activities and a separate chapter for sport.

Another significant change is the architecture of the proposed programme. The Commission has focused on harmonisation and flexibility; the actions and administrative provisions have been streamlined and simplified.

The proposed programme is based on three types of key actions:

Key Actions	Focus of activities
Key Action 1: Learning mobility of individuals	Staff, higher education and vocational education and training students, joint masters degrees, Erasmus Master (student loan guarantee facility), youth
Key Action 2: Cooperation for innovation and good practices	Strategic partnerships, knowledge alliances, sector skills alliances and IT platforms
Key Action 3: Support for policy reform	Support to Europe 2020 governance and the open method of coordination

Rapporteur's suggestions

The Rapporteur welcomes the Commission's intention to decrease the fragmentation and overlaps that exist in the current programmes. However, in the simplified Proposal, it is difficult to identify concrete activities in the field of education and youth. The Youth sector, in particular, is barely visible in the Proposal.

The Rapporteur would like to draw attention in particular to the following issues:

1. Name of the Programme and sector-specific brand names

The Commission proposes to call the new programme "Erasmus for all", relying on the fact that "Erasmus" is widely recognised by the general public worldwide. However, "Erasmus" is strongly associated with the individual mobility of higher education students. In fact, the acronym "Erasmus" stands for EuRopean Action Scheme for the Mobility of University Students.

Aside from higher education, "Erasmus" does not take into account the other fields covered by the future programme, namely school education, vocational education and training, adult learning, youth and sport. The Rapporteur therefore suggests that the programme maintain the current and well-known name "Lifelong Learning Programme".

The Rapporteur is convinced that the identity of individual educational fields needs to be kept and strengthened – it is therefore crucial to continue using the current brand names Comenius (for school education), Erasmus (for higher education), Leonardo da Vinci (for vocational education and training), Grundtvig (for adult learning) and Youth in action (for youth). This can be done while maintaining the more streamlined structure proposed by the Commission.

2. Architecture

The Rapporteur welcomes the Commission's streamlined architecture. However, separate Chapters are necessary in order to clearly identify the three main areas of the programme, namely (1) education and training, (2) youth and (3) sport.

Both the Chapter "Education and training" and the Chapter "Youth" should maintain the architecture of the Proposal with three types of actions: (1) learning mobility of individuals, (2) cooperation for innovation and good practices and (3) support for policy reform. However, within actions (1) and (2), there is a pressing need to specify the objectives and activities within the different educational sectors and for youth.

3. Education and Training

Due to its general and abstract nature, the Proposal does not provide enough specific information on the activities that it will cover in the different educational sectors. However, the reader of the future legal act must be able to identify which activities are eligible for which funding. For the greater visibility of concrete actions and sectors, the Rapporteur considers it necessary to outline the main objectives and activities of each educational sector.

In addition, the Proposal has a strong focus on higher education, whereas the other educational sectors have much less visibility. The Rapporteur stresses the importance of finding the right balance between all educational sectors in the text.

For the activities in higher education, in particular student mobility, more flexibility is needed in order to adapt the mobility activities to the Bologna reforms and the new degree structures that have been established throughout Europe – namely Bachelor, Master and PhD degrees.

Moreover, it is necessary to create opportunities to combine part-time studies with part-time internships during an Erasmus stay abroad. In addition, Erasmus mobility periods should not be restricted to one academic year and one university. Instead, it should be possible to study at least at two universities and in different academic years.

The Rapporteur also considers it short-sighted to restrict the international dimension in the field of education and training to higher education alone. In light of the long programming period of seven years, it would be useful to allow a certain degree of flexibility in case there is a need to extend international cooperation to the field of vocational education and training in order to support the development of this field in third countries, in particular in the neighbourhood countries.

4. Youth

The Proposal has no separate Chapter or even an Article for Youth. It is important to ensure that the "Youth in Action" activities continue and receive appropriate funding. For the sake of transparency and independence, it is therefore crucial to have both a separate Chapter and a separate budget line for Youth. In addition, it must be ensured that European Youth NGOs continue to receive the appropriate funding.

The Proposal places high emphasis on the achievement of key competences and skills which are indeed crucial for the employability of young people. However, if the EU wants to become a smart, sustainable and inclusive economy, it also needs to focus on young people's personal development, social inclusion and active involvement in society.

5. Sport

According to the Commission, the programme beneficiaries will be public bodies or civil society organisations active in the area of grassroots sport. Therefore, the Rapporteur strongly suggests adding the concept "grassroots sport", both in the definitions and the relevant Articles of the Proposal. In addition, the Proposal should focus more on voluntary activity in the field of sport.

6. Jean Monnet activities

Within the current Lifelong Learning Programme, there are altogether six institutes that receive operational funding under Jean Monnet activities. In the Proposal, operational funding is only foreseen for the College of Europe (Bruges and Natolin campuses) and the European University Institute in Florence. The European Institute of Public Administration in Maastricht, the Academy of European Law in Trier, the European Agency for Development in Special Needs Education in Middelfart and the International Centre for European Training (CIFE) in Nice are no longer included. It is important to maintain the operational funding for all institutes currently on the list, and the Rapporteur therefore suggests incorporating them in the legal text.

7. Minimum allocation of funds per sector

In the Proposal, the minimum allocations for each policy area are mentioned only in the (non-binding) explanatory memorandum. It is important to incorporate these allocations into the legal text, in order to make them legally binding.

In the Lifelong Learning Programme, these minimum allocations amount to 82 %. However, in the Proposal, the total percentage is only 56 %, which means that there is a flexibility rate of 44 %. The Rapporteur insists on a higher figure set out in the Regulation in order to secure reliable funding for the different sectors.

8. National Authorities and National Agencies

The Proposal is based on the idea of a single National Authority and single National Agency per Member State. The Rapporteur considers that this issue falls under the principle of subsidiarity – each Member State has a different administrative structure and must have the right to decide on the appropriate number of National Authorities and Agencies.

9. Programme Committee

In keeping with the streamlined architecture of the Proposal, the Commission foresees only one Programme Committee. The Rapporteur points out that the new programme covers not only various educational sectors but also youth and sport. In addition, it contains international cooperation in higher education. Due to this heterogeneity, the Rapporteur suggests that the Programme Committee meet in different configurations according to the subject-matter of each meeting. Social partners should also participate in the work of the Committee whenever it discusses issues of their interest.
