It should also explore the understanding of young people as a community and identify the opportunities

		and obstacles that young people see as catalysts and inhibitors of the socio-ecological transition and how they could be addressed by policy in order to foster a sustainable and innovative society in Europe, including through formal and informal education as well as digital and traditional media. Julian submitting as PI, with Richard, Isabella, Roman, Marketa and consortium from Salzburg forum (Paul Milhailidis), Divina Frau-Meigs, Antonio Lopez, Sally Reynolds. 3	Broadcast, Games and Film	Wellcome Trust Development Awards (Broadcast, Games and Film) - Applications may be submitted at any time during the year. Development Awards support the development of TV, radio, games or film projects that engage (as a whole or in part) with biomedical science and its impact on our lives in an innovative, entertaining and accessible way. These awards fund people and organisations with brilliant ideas for TV, radio, games or film projects. We are keen to receive proposals in all genres, though we are particularly interested in series, format ideas and drama; multi-platform proposals are welcomed. Our funding will enable these ideas to be developed into high-impact, well-researched proposals that can be used to secure a broadcast/distribution platform and/or further funding. In some circumstances, development funds can be used for a project that is currently in production but which needs additional development/research to shape the final production. Development funds can be used to create assets that shape or inform a proposal but which cannot be used for production. For example, funds might be used to undertake research or to support costs associated with enabling collaboration with scientists and researchers. Alternatively, they might be used to develop a script or treatment, create a taster tape or storyboard, build a game prototype, scope multimedia potential or wrap-around activities, or work up a comprehensive distribution plan. Your project should primarily be aimed at a mainstream UK and/or Republic of Ireland audience in the first instance, although the subject matter can be international. Please note that current affairs programmes are not eligible for Development Awards. Development Awards are worth up to £10,000, for a maximum of one year.

5	Digital methods in Arts and Humanities	Network for digital methods in the arts and humanities - short and exchange visit grants (Applications should be submitted at least two months before the planned starting date of the visit.) The European Science Foundation invites proposals, under its network for digital methods in the arts and humanities programme, for short visits and exchange grants. 8	Creative & Digital	EU Horizon 2020: REFLECTIVE-2-2015: Emergence and transmission of European cultural heritage and Europeanisation http://ec.europa.eu/research/participants/portal/desktop/en/opportunities/h2020/topics/2088-reflective-2-2015.html Deadline May 2015 Scope: The multidisciplinary and comparative research will focus on the emergence of a European cultural heritage in a historical perspective and the best way to transmit it. The content and methodology of education and curricula should be taken into account, as well as the role of new technologies and media. It will address how the local, regional, national and European aspects of cultural heritage are interlinked, how they are understood or not by citizens and encouraged or not by various stakeholders and promoters of cultural heritage. It will also analyse how this interplay of cultural heritage at different levels impacts on Europeanisation and the citizens' perceptions on Europe. The research will focus on the place of critical reflection in sustaining this as a cultural resource. This research should include both tangible and intangible cultural heritage as well as less established or popular examples of cultural heritage in the area of the living arts and consider contemporary trends in arts and culture in the shaping of tomorrow's European cultural heritage in order to enrich the study differentiating between commercial and non-commercial aspects. The research will also focus on the multilingual nature of the European heritage, seeking to gain a deeper understanding of the axiological, linguistic, social and cultural aspects of multilingualism and how they ensure the transmission of cultural heritage across generations and borders. Julian approached to be Co-I, potentially to include Isabella, Richard, Bronwen, Jim Pope, Alessandro from L&T.
